BOA CONSTRICTOR ACT
I have often wondered how Jonah felt when he was swallowed by the whale, or how the cow or other animal felt when it found itself within the interior of a boa constrictor.

It is more easy to realize their emotions when I read of the plan to take the 58 counties of California and combine them into fifteen. In the proposed arrangement Contra Costa is swallowed by the boa constrictor named Alameda county, with Solano thrown in for good measure, and loses its identity forevermore.

The Swiss Republic is a small political entity but it has its pride in its country and its history. How would it feel to be engulfed by one of its larger and more powerful neighbors? The swallowing process was invoked when Europe was partitioned among the victors, following the World War. Since then there has been trouble and discord, and their origin can be traced back to the death of identity of these peoples and their merging with others whose thoughts and customs were diametrically different.

MAD EXPERIENCE
Contra Costa has had some examples of what Alameda would do, once we got into its clutches. It is only a few months ago that that county tried to force on us a regional park which we did not want and put us in the position of paying the bill for our big brother. Fortunately we had the intestinal fortitude to resist, but the incident serves to show just what we could expect if consolidation was put in (Continued on page 3)

Five Counties Will Oppose Bridge Suit

MARTINEZ, March 30.—District Attorneys of Solano, Alameda, San Mateo and Sacramento counties will meet here Tuesday morning with District Attorney Francis P. Healey to consider legal questions involved in the suit brought against Contra Costa by the American Toll Bridge company, which seeks return of approximately $131,000 it claims has been collected illegally in taxes on the Crockett and Antioch bridges. The suit is to go to trial here before Superior Judge J. J. Trabucco of Mariposa county April 11.

District attorneys of the other counties are interested in the action inasmuch as they have terminals of toll bridges in their counties and may also face suits of similar character. Solano county is also facing an action by the American Toll Bridge company, which is asking return of taxes of the same amount as claimed due from Contra Costa.

The bridge company claims that its physical properties are in reality the property of Contra Costa, Solano and Sacramento counties, claiming that it merely holds franchises for operation of the spans with permission to collect tolls and that the land belongs to the state and the counties and any structure affixed to the land becomes the property of the owner under general law.

Contra Costa county has secured judgment of $67,343 against the American Toll Bridge company on another issue—right of collection of two percent of its gross receipts—but the company has filed an appeal.

Hightman Paroled From County Jail

MARTINEZ, March 30.—Under the agreement that he would take his wife and two children and leave for Louisville, Kentucky, to make his home, Homer Hightman today was given a parole from the county jail.

Hightman had served two months of a six months term imposed on a charge involving contributing to the delinquency of a minor girl.

Henry Hightman and Stella Kirk also convicted in the same case, are still serving six months terms.

Social service workers told the parole board that Hightman's wife and two children were destitute and had to be supported by the county. Hightman agreed to go back to Louisville, where he formerly resided.

NO FUNDS FOR CAMPS OF CCC

Despite the fact that no money is available for wages, almost every officer and man at the CCC camp in San Pablo yesterday signed the rolls to continue to march in camp and "take a chance" that they will be paid.

It was learned yesterday that an assembly was held at the camp on Friday and officers informed the CCC boys that until the $150,000 work relief bill is passed, there will be no funds available for pay checks. They were told that if they wished they could sign an agreement whereby they would remain in camp, whether they were paid or not. All were reported to have signed the papers.

CCC officials announced yesterday that on Monday between 50,000 and 100,000 men will leave the camps as their terms of enrollment have expired. Re-enrollment to fill their places began immediately, though the new men will not be sent to camps until the work relief bill is passed.

BRUNO LAWYER ASKS $25,000

TRENTON, N. J., March 30.—U. P. Edward J. Reilly, chief of the army of brilliant attorneys who defended Bruno Richard Hauptmann in his trial for the murder of the Lindbergh baby, has presented Hauptmann with a bill for $25,000 the United Press learned today on unimpeachable authority.

Reilly and associate counsel, Egbert Rosenzweig, visited Hauptmann in his death house cell at the State prison this week and submitted the bill, the United Press informant said. Hauptmann protested that he was unable to pay it—that he was penniless—and Reilly indicated he would more to attach the Hauptmann defense fund or possibly ask Mrs. Hauptmann to pay the bill.

Mrs. Hauptmann is touring the country speaking in her husband's behalf and raising funds to aid the fight to save him from the electric chair. The United Press was told that she has raised at least $50,000. This includes substantial contributions from Hauptmann's fellow-countrymen—Germans now living in this country and many of them Nazis who have given the German carpenter financial support since his arrest last fall.

Death yesterday claimed Mrs. Mary Victor Cambria at a Martinez hospital.

Deceased was a resident of El Cerrito, her home having been on Liberty street in that city, where she had resided for the past 15 years. She was held in the highest of esteem by a large circle of friends and church members, who having been afflicted with St. John's Catholic church.

Four sons and three daughters survive her.

DRIVER HURT IN CAR CRASH

Jack Earl Compton, 20, unemployed cook, of 1641 Twenty-third avenue, Oakland, suffered cuts and bruises last night in an automobile accident on Tenth Avenue Hill.

Compton's car crashed into the rear of a large truck driven by J. Hendry of Oakland, just before reaching the brow of the hill. Both Compton's car and the truck were bound toward Richmond.

According to Compton, he did not see the truck until he had almost struck it. He swerved his car in an effort to avoid the crash and the right side of his machine struck the left rear end of the truck. Compton's car was almost completely wrecked.

The injured man was removed to the local hospital by passing motorists and after being treated his wounds inflicted by flying glass was returned to his home.

Shortly after the accident an automobile smashed into a stray horse talking along San Pablo avenue, killing the animal instantly and slightly damaging the car. The driver, whose name could not be learned last night, was not injured.

The parade will start at 10 o'clock this morning from Cutting and San Pablo and will march to the carnival grounds. The festival will end tonight.

Last night's program was marked by the crowning of the queen, Miss Jennie DeMott, at a grand ball. Prizes were awarded during the evening.

The line of march for the parade is as follows:

Chief of Police Cheek and officials in car.

Grand Marshal Sheriff John A. Miller, on horseback.

WATER SUPPLY FOR DISTRICT IS ASSURED

Snowfall in the Sierras, from which the East Bay Municipal Utility District draws its water supply, is greater than for several years, and insures a substantial runoff during the coming months, according to the current report of J. S. Lenzell, chief engineer and general manager.

The snow is now 11 feet deep at the summit, as compared with about three feet at the same period of last year, he reported, and if precipitation during the balance of the winter months is normal, the Pardee reservoir should fill, bringing the available storage from 17 billion gallons at present to the full capacity of 63 billion gallons. In the district's local reservoirs, the available storage is at present 16 billion gallons, making available in all reservoirs, including Pardee, a total of 79 billion gallons. The runoff this year into the local reservoirs has totaled three billion gallons, which is about fifty per cent of the normal. The annual use by the people of the District totals 12 billion gallons.

Lenzell reported a substantial increase in the sale of water over that for the previous fiscal year, indicating an increase in the number of consumers and also an increase in the use by manufacturing plants. Good progress was reported on the construction of the new filtration plant at Orinda with the bulk of the excavation completed and with concrete and building construction sufficiently advanced so that the plant can be placed in operation within the next few months.

A number of SERA projects are being carried on, consisting of the installation of 30 inch pipe in the Oak Knoll District, the reconditioning of a large steel pipe line between the Upper San Leandro filter plant and Central reservoir, as well as a number of smaller projects scattered throughout the district in both Alameda and Contra Costa counties. A total of approximately 2,500 men are assigned to these SERA projects. In the watershed lands, Lenzell stated, one SERA and two CCC crews with a total force of approximately 600 men are carrying on an extensive program, building fire roads, fire breaks, planting trees in the vicinity of the reservoirs and generally improving the areas tributary to the various local sources of water supply.

MRS. CHARLES BROVLES of Alameda and Miss Suzanne McDevitt of San Francisco, were visitors here yesterday.

MISS DE MARTINI A FORTUNATE GIRL

It is often said that ill-fortunes never comes singly. Good for Miss Jennie De Martini, who also sometimes comes in great flocks. Miss Jennie De Martini could well testify to that. In addition to being queen of the parade, she rides in the parade in a big twelve cylinder Lincoln, she received a valuable diamond ring, and best of all, her father presents her with a brand new Ford V-8. The breaks are decidedly for her at the moment, and I, for one, am glad that it is so.

APRIL FOOL PARTY GIVEN AT CHURCH

Members of the El Cerrito M. E. church gave an April Fool party Friday night. In compliment to the 49th days all the guests were requested to appear in old-time costumes. Games and stunts formed the evening's entertainment. After several games had been enjoyed, the company was asked to select partners for the grand march downstairs to the banquet table. Upon reaching the table they found toothpicks and water by way of refreshments and the cooks called out "April fool." However, after an hour or so at games following the false alarm a real supper made its appearance and was heartily enjoyed.

RED-JAPANESE TREATY URGED AT PACT MEET

LONDON, March 30. (UP)—British mediation to bring about a friendly accord between Russia and Japan was regarded tonight as one of the possible results of Captain Anthony Eden's consultations in Moscow.

There is reason to believe Moscow would not be adverse to Britain's assistance in improving Japanese-Soviet relations, as a supplement to direct negotiations between Moscow and Tokyo on the proposed demilitarization of the Manchukuo-Siberian frontier, a Japanese-Russian non-aggression pact and other issues.

Anglo-United States quarters here were interested in a rumor that the Soviet would welcome a security pact in the Pacific involving Russia, Britain, the United States, Japan and China.

Robert W. Bingham, U. S. ambassador, plans to visit the foreign office after Eden's return to get information on the course of the Moscow talks.

The prospects for a far Eastern pact were considered somewhat heightened since it arose casually and informally on the side lines of the 1931 London naval talks.

Norman H. Davis then intimated the United States would favor inclusion of China and Russia in such a proposal was submitted.

The outlook for a Pacific non-aggression accord was deemed improved, partly because of a decision on the part of certain Western powers to obtain a freer hand in Europe in the face of German policy.

It was believed possible suggestion would assume a tangible form at the naval conference expected to be held in November.

The tone of the British press more friendly towards Russia at any time since the war, News Chronicle's correspondent accompanying Eden, A. J. C. Munnings, telegraphed as follows:

"Britain can march side by side with Russia towards organic peace and depend on Russia in this matter as a loyal ally."

"The supreme fact which emerged already from the mission to Moscow, is the possibility of a real British entente with Russia based on a common desire for world peace."

Use of the words "ally" and "entente" in connection with Anglo-Soviet relations outbalances the official attitude, which, however, is conspicuously thawed towards the Soviets.

SMALL BUT PROUD

We have a county, that I well covered, a blessed with a low tax rate and there is no economic or other reason I can see for a change. Thus far we have been able to maintain our 100% rate. Our heads up. Whatever savings, if any, that would come from a merger with Alameda and Solano, is too great a price to pay for our independence. We can be small but we are damn proud.

ANCIENT BELIEFS

It comes from what a shock when our ancient notions are exploded. Hundreds of them, picked up in our childhood have been picked by the needs of reality and left as refuse rather deflated.

However, we still come to that ancient belief that beauty and brains never formed a combination, and our faith was firmly pinned to the expression, "beautiful but dumb." Our own attitude being such that none would demand our entry into a beauty show, naturally it warmed the cockles of our heart to entertain the belief that lacking in one attribute, we possibly possessed the other. And in addition, experience had demonstrated to us or so we thought, that the B and B mixture was about as successful as oil and water.

PROF'S KNOCKED OUT

But here comes along, one of those econo-chastre creatures and knocks the props right out from under us. A couple of days ago a picture was printed on the front page of the Record-Herald depicting a beautiful blonde, incidentally the winner of 10 beauty contests.

We were also advised that she had published a book of poems, and it was a financial success.

DISBURRING PROOF

That item proved a rude shock but it was nothing to the announcement emanating from Philadelphia—perhaps the most famous of the then announcement—that beauty and brains are synonymous. The assertion is evidently not open to argument, for it came from the deans of women at three universities in the City of Brotherly Love.

Furthermore, from past painful experience, I have made it a rule never to argue with those of the opposite sex. Perhaps I might intimate that the decision is biased, being rendered by the feminine fair, but I consider discretion the better part of valor and let it go at that.

Of course there must be reasons for such revolutionary dicta. "There never was a girl who was both beautiful and dumb," Miss H. Jean Crawford, director of women at the University of Pennsylvania declared. "It was just a myth. The two things are inseparable. For true beauty is born of intelligence and character."

"The girls who do the best work in our colleges are invariably handsome girls. Their intelligence is reflected in their faces, and most of them, in their eyes. Only intelligent people can be truly beautiful."

"I don't know where the beautiful-but-dumb theory originated," said Miss Edna Clark, acting dean of women at Temple University, "but an examination of scholarly records at almost any co-educational institution would disprove it."

Miss Ruth A. Dorsey, dean of women at Drexel Institute, also said that the old maxim was a fallacy. Now listen to this dirty dirt:

"The saying was probably originated by a man unfamiliar with the scholarly work of many beautiful girls."

"I'll confess I am flattered and will readily admit the error of my thinking for these many years. However permit me to praise long enough to say I am convinced that every woman is a human stalk of loveliness and in addition to her attractiveness of face and form, her beauty is enhanced by the possession of plenty of that mysterious and elusive thing called brain. That should settle the argument and put me in the clear."

Murder Theory Seen In Death

NEW YORK, March 30. (UP)—George L. Alagna received a threatening telegram 24 hours before he was found overcome by gas on the floor of the kitchen of his apartment, the American Telegraphists, a national body of men engaged in the communications business, reported today.

Alagna was assistant radio operator, around whom sensational charges revolved in the Morro castle disaster.

First indications were that Alagna, despondent over his inability to secure employment because he alleged, steamship line officials "blacklisted" him, had attempted suicide.

Duke Jailed For Pawning Jewels

LONDON, March 30. (UP)—The Duke of Manchester was committed for trial today on the charge that he obtained 250 pounds ($1,200) by false pretenses in pawning jewelry which was part of the estate of his late mother. He was allowed bail of 250 pounds ($1,200).

It was charged that the duke improperly pawned two pieces of jewelry held in entail under the will of his mother, the former Constance Viscountess de Vaux, of Ravenswood, La.

Lesson Subject At Science Church

"Then, O Lord, shall endure for ever; and thy remembrance unto all generations." These words from Psalms comprise the Golden Text to be used Sunday, March 31, at all Churches of Christ Scientist branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Reality." Included among the Scriptural selections will be: "And the disciples came, and said unto him, Why speakest thou unto them in parables? He answered and said unto them, Because it is given unto you to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it is not given. For verily I say unto you, That many prophets and righteous men have desired to see those things which ye see, and have not seen them; and to hear those things which ye hear, and have not heard them." (Matthew 13: 10, 11, 17).

The following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included: "What is termed material sense can report only a mortal temporary sense of things whereas spiritual sense can hear witness only to Truth. . . . Spiritual ideas lead up to their divine origin, God, and to the spiritual sense of being" (p. 298).

W. C. T. U. NOTES

By MRS. CARL W. LONGAURE
Freedom of the press includes the right of a newspaper to reject advertising offered to it for publication. It is as important to defend the purses and health of the people from private exploiters as to defend their liberties against political usurpers.

The Daily News closes its columns against all advertisements of alcoholic liquor. It laid down that policy before repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, when it was generally presumed that local liquors offered for sale would at least be potable in the generally accepted sense.

The principle of the Daily News rule that bars liquor advertising extends to all medical advertising. In the last year, more than $500,000 has been paid to other publications in Chicago by advertisers of liquor and of medicines that are either fraudulent in their claims, or are deemed to be potentially dangerous to health.

For generations it has been a trick of John Barleycorn to steal into homes disguised as a tonic. All preparations containing a high alcoholic content, no matter what their claims, are excluded from advertising in the Daily News just as rightly as whiskey, gin, brandy and rum are barred. The booze, not the name or the claim, counts with this newspaper.

In rejecting the advertising of such products, this newspaper deprives itself of immediate revenues. But in doing so, it builds up the value of its space for all legitimate advertisers, who are bound to profit accordingly when they advertise their wares in columns which readers have learned can be depended upon not only to tell the truth, but to protect the reader's interest.

In a recent letter outlining the reasons for its rejection of a large volume of advertising of a product that has been widely sold throughout the country for many years, the Daily News sent to an eastern representative this order: "Kill it. It has been known to kill." "Kill it" is the standing order of this newspaper with regard to advertising suspected of being indirectly dangerous to the health or the pocketbooks of its readers.

Gold In Cellar

TWO 16-year-old Baltimore boys, whose families were on relief rolls, discovered an old corner pot full of gold while digging in the cellar. The face value was $11,427.50, but for collectors it was $28,872. The boys, shown above, were, left Theodore Jones and Harry Grob.

COLLECTOR OF TAXES ROBBED DURING STORM

NORFOLK, Tex.—March 30. UP—Two bandits took advantage of a swirling dust storm that caused traffic to move at a snail's pace to rob Arthur Huey, Hutchinson county tax collector, of $10,053 in tax funds today.

Huey was driving slowly to the county depository when a couple carrying three men cut in ahead of him and forced his automobile to the ditch four miles north of Panshandle.

Two men, wearing masked clothes, got into his car and threatened him with pistols. One robber covered his face with a handkerchief, apparently to protect his nostrils from the dust. Huey was ordered to drive to a side road where the bandits looted a secret compartment in his automobile and bound him.

"If you make a crooked move, I'll kill you," Huey quoted one of the bandits as threatening him. His hands and feet bound with rope and his eyes covered with tape, the collector was left to the roadside and the highwaymen drove eastward. After ten minutes of working with his hands, Huey freed himself, hailed a motorist and reported the robbery to Sheriff R. B. Harris and Bill Hoskew, county policeman.

Cuba's quota for 1935 is 1,819,222 short tons and the Philippines' quota is 918,352.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Development of New Scarlet Fever Anti-Toxin Should Soon Remove Disease's Danger

ONE of the most important points in the treatment of scarlet fever is its early recognition. If scarlet fever is not recognized within two or three days after its onset all symptoms may disappear, but the disease is not cured and no further signs be evident for a week or ten days. Then the disease commences or some of the serious complications have already set in and serious damage results.

It is not an uncommon occurrence to be called to see a child in convalescence from a serious kidney infection and discover some scaling around the finger nails. There is a history of his having been slightly sick with a sore throat and fever, and the mother is likely to explain that the child ate something that didn't agree with it, had thrown up its food and there appeared a slight stomach rash.

The diagnosis of a stomach or scarlet rash usually means a scarlet fever rash. The first and most important step in the treatment is absolute rest in bed till the fever has disappeared and all sores and discharge from the throat and nose have cleared up. It is very difficult to keep an apparently well child in bed, but it is the only way to prevent the complications of acute Bright's disease, acute articular rheumatism, sinus infections, infections of the middle ear, and heart diseases.

ALSO, it is the only way to obtain complete isolation and prevent its spread to other children. In my own locality we are having a wide-spread epidemic of mild scarlet fever. I asked a children specialist yesterday how he was treating them.

He said, "I keep them in bed, and am compelled to make frequent calls to see that my orders are carried out. If I find the child is not kept in bed I dismiss the case, because bed rest is the only way to prevent complications."

The treatment of the disease includes keeping the bowels well open, a light diet with plenty of fruit juices and water in abundance, alkaline gargles for the throat and soothing coughs for the nose with general care of the prominent symptoms. This has always been about all we could do. Use warm soda sponges for the itching, daily warm baths, particularly when scaling is severe, with an oil rub to prevent picking at the scales.

In the last ten years since the discovery of the specific toxin that causes the disease, great progress has been made in the prevention and treatment of scarlet fever. It has always been known that scarlet fever is caused by a very small amount injected under the outer skin will show whether the child can catch the fever.

WHEN an injection is made into the skin, if the patient is immune to scarlet fever no reaction will occur. If not immune, within twenty-four to forty-eight hours a red spot will appear at the site of the injection. If they are susceptible, injections of scarlet fever anti-toxin will prevent the occurrence of the fever and the Dick test will become negative.

The protection has now been proven to prevent for a period of seven or eight years and probably for much longer. If there is any doubt of the immunity, another application of the Dick test will prove it pro or con. After much effort and extensive experimentation, an anti-toxin has been produced with which to treat an attack of scarlet fever.

After known exposure, if an injection of anti-toxin is given, it will in all probability prevent its development. If it does not prevent it, the disease will be very mild. If used early, it not only shortens the course of the disease, but is a great help in preventing complications. It is very wise to use the anti-toxin even in the mildest cases, so as to forestall the serious after-effects of scarlet fever. The development of the Dick test and the use of anti-toxin for prevention and cure should soon remove the danger of scarlet fever.

Guide to Charm WOMAN IN 30'S NEEDS DEFINITE COSMETIC PLAN

By JACQUELINE HUNT

THE woman in her thirties should make a special effort to find the method of beauty care that is best for her skin, and to follow it faithfully. Do not try one thing for a week or two and then something else.

If you have lots of time the treatment you choose may involve a lot of beauty preparations, but this isn't necessary. A good cleansing cream, a cream with stimulating, healing qualities such as the rejuvenating cream we wrote about recently, a good tonic or astringent and for the dry skin a cream that is rich in oils are enough for any woman.

Cosmetics, massage with a good cream, and toning with ice water are necessary for your daily routine. A special cream will not need to be used more than two or three times a week.

If possible, have a relaxing beauty bath and a complete treatment at the same time you are the special cream.

Get the habit of finishing your beauty treatment by patting your skin with a big pad of cotton soaked in ice-cold skin tonic or astringent. It brings up the circulation and gives your skin a good color, and best of all it perks up those muscles at the corners of your mouth if they have started to sag. So let's have some extra patting around the mouth, under the chin, and about the neck.

The neck is another vulnerable spot where wrinkles are concerned. Extra care here, besides your cleansing, apply cleansing cream liberally from low on your chest, upward over the base of your throat, jawline and face. Remove the soiled cream and wash your face with as much care as you do your face.

Apply softening cream liberally or use a special cream if you are using it on your face. If you use the softening cream, massage thoroughly or use one of the little patters that you can buy at a five-and-ten-cent store. When your skin is glowing, wipe away most of the surplus cream and pat the neck with skin tonic or astringent.

Always be careful not to pull or stretch the skin on your throat when using these preparations. Always lift and work upward in your massage and patting movements. Muscle oil is grand for the neck, and it is grand for the throat, and it is grand for the face.

Remember that all of the corrective work for lazy, dull skins and wrinkles cannot come from the outside. You may need a better balanced diet or more exercise or rest. Often, too, there may be matters that should be looked after by your family doctor. It takes will-power, too, to change your facial expression, to go through corrective treatments and to follow the diet or exercise routine prescribed for you.

PROFILES FOR TODAY

By TALBOT LAKE

Mrs. Thomas Whiffen, Famed Actress, Still Hale And Hearty at Ninetieth Birthday

MRS. THOMAS WHIFFEN, grand old lady of the stage, has now reached the ripe, but not old, age of ninety. She celebrated the birthday recently on her farm near Roanoke, Va., with her daughter Peggy and her son Tom. Well-wishers all over the country celebrated it with her in spirit. Mrs. Whiffen, until a couple of years ago, seemed likely to remain active on the stage forever, but she finally retired—partially. She still makes radio broadcasts and occasional footlight appearances.

Old-timers and some not so old—remember her as a familiar figure on Broadway and the by-roads of the nation. She has appeared in almost all the towns of any size in the United States and for many years it seemed as if a play was not successful unless she was in it. Her span of theater life runs from the beginning of the naturalistic period right to the present day, and she has seen the American theater grow to maturity from a crude, kerosene-footlight era.

Sixty-seven years ago, as the bride of Thomas Whiffen, a singer of Gilbert and Sullivan roles, she reached New York from London, and has been here ever since. She remembers picking violets where great skyscrapers now are, her relief when gas-lights superseded the dangerous kerosene lamps, the debuts of such stars as John Drew and Ethel Barrymore ("very frightened she was"), and the sturdiness of Edwin Booth as to his health.

She believes Augustin Daly was the creator of the modern theater and that Daniel Frohman was the chief gardener in bringing it to flower. She has appeared with such famous figures as Clara Morris, Ada Rehan, Lillian Russell, Margaret Anglin, Henry Miller, Mr. Drew, of course, and many others. In all she has played about four hundred roles, a few of them in pictures. During her sojourn in Hollywood she never ceased to marvel at the intricate system of lighting, apparently never having got over her first fright of oil lamp footlights.

While Mrs. Whiffen enjoys thinking over the past at times, she really lives more in the present. Always alert, and in excellent health, she is forever wondering what to do next.

Taffeta, With Its Crisp Sound Effect, Decidedly In Spring Clothes Picture

NEW SPECTATOR SPORTS TYPES

Copyright, 1935, by Fairchild.

NEW YORK—It appears to be a spring of many diaphanous fabrics, although taffeta can hardly be called that, and taffeta is here, here and everywhere. Some of the taffeta used has a crisp, pop-like quality which is new and noisy.

Although silk houses have avoided calling the new over-printed "teta," "paper" taffetas, some of the stores have adopted this term. The term "paper" is especially descriptive for these over-printed taffetas, since they do have a crackling sound like paper.

A pop-dotted taffeta frock with a taffeta or wool redingote is a sensible suggestion. The dress is not pop-dotted, since the dots are all manner of smart dots, but polka dots are a seasonal suggestion.

A recent development is the short, single skirt that can be draped and the close neckline, without a belt, and tied at back. Among the dominating styles are Asen and Jabots, since the ruffly touch that contrasts with the tailored costumes with which they are worn is the "desired effect" this season.

Topper and gilette are important, reflecting suit prominence. Paris puts "waistcoat" effects. These are among the few exceptions to the rule of sheerness in neckwear, since they may also be featured in linens, new cottons, taffeta and synthetics, serving as they do or blouses.

Skelet today are two versions of spectator sports frocks. Sheer wool crepe in two tones of saffron makes the two-piece frock at all.

At right, beige ratine is used for a beige frock with brown leather buttons and a yellow kerchief scarf.

At right of the column, the short, single coat is of brown Alaska pelts worn over a dull gold wool dress with triangular gold pockets, buttons, and a belt. The hat is gold velvet with metal ornament, and the accessories brown alligator.

You and Your Child REFUSING FOOD BECAME GAME FOR THIS CHILD

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

JIMMY's refusal to eat was being interpreted by his mother as a sign of loss of appetite. The three-year-old always came to table when called, seemingly hungry. And each time mother was hopeful that he would be different this time. But as soon as food was set before him, Jimmy's performance would be sure to run true to form. It generally started off with, "I don't want any soup." Or "Take the spinach off my plate." If mother urged him to eat and be a good boy, his protests would grow louder. Or if mother did as he wanted, removing the soup or the spinach from his plate, he would fuss over something else. It was a hopeless situation.

Finally, mother took the youngster to the family physician. He looked him over and pronounced him a hardy specimen.

He looked him over and pronounced him a hardy specimen. "Jimmy has a good appetite, but," and the doctor tapped his desk thoughtfully, "he would rather play than eat. Apparently, he manages to get all the food he needs to keep his body healthy. Jimmy also knows that you are anxious when he does not eat and at his mercy. Your reactions fascinate him. He tests his power over you by getting bolder. It is a thrilling game for him, one at which he cannot lose. In the end the food will be his no matter what he does."

At the doctor's suggestion, mother set out to cure Jimmy. There would be no nonsense this time. It was lunchtime. Jimmy sat down, and announced, "I don't want any dinner. I'm not hungry." "Run along then," mother said quietly. "If you are not hungry, you need not eat." She removed the plate from the table, and to prove that she did not care, threw out the food. "See, Jimmy, I'm throwing it away," she pointed out, and then went about her business.

In a couple of hours, Jimmy came in hungry as a bear demanding something to eat. It was just as the doctor had predicted it would be. Mother spoke calmly. "You saw me throw away your dinner. I have nothing for you. You wouldn't be hungry now if you had eaten before." "Oh, forget it!" Jimmy snapped back and was gone. But he had learned a lesson, as he hadn't given his mother any trouble since.

Short Cuts

Rayon and other artificial silk fabrics should be pressed on the wrong side with an iron that is not too hot.

If you are broiling liver, the cooking time is five minutes in a hot oven. Scalloped or au gratin dishes require about twenty-five minutes in a hot oven.

You can make the children eat prunes and like them, if they've been turning up their noses at prunes lately. Simply serve them with sliced oranges, and save a little of the juice to pour over the prunes. It makes a world of difference to the flavor.

MODERN WOMEN

By MARIAN MAY'S MARTIN

"Mother of Five and Twice a Widow" Sets Up a Business of Giving Advice to the Troubled

TALKING about one's troubles is a rather general failing. But would it be worth a dollar to have someone to tell them to? A "Mother of five and twice a widow" believes it would. And she is backing up her judgment by opening an office to which anyone can go and tell her their grievances.

It will be interesting to know how she fares in her capacity as mother confessor. She believes that there are many who are neither religious nor deranged, and that therefore there must be a niche for one who is neither a priest nor a psychiatrist.

Giving advice is serious business. It would be very serious indeed if those seeking it were bound to follow it. But most of the advice asked for is either for a confirmation of opinion or from a desire to get another angle on some subject. Most people who seek advice never take it.

IT SEEMS sound reasoning that putting one's problem in concrete form helps clarify it. When we mull things over in our own minds we frequently have anything but a clear perception of just what our real problem is. When we try to put it in words, so that some one else can understand our reactions, the problem very often is half solved. It seems much simpler and easier of solution. Anyway, this is the theory that the enterprising woman in question is working on.

Whether she succeeds in helping the problems of those who consult her, she appears to be a pioneer in this kind of work. Two husbands and five children should have contributed a great deal to her fund of knowledge of life and death, but she says she was not a complete blank could fail to have benefited by such a rich experience. It is only those who have been through much who have any right to feel they know anything about life.

Not that one person's experience is necessarily another's. Circumstances naturally make a vast difference. One may not be able to save another through her own experiences, but there is always the desire and the hope of doing so.

MOST of us never learn from others. Every mother and father from Adam and Eve down have tried to give their offspring the benefit of their first-hand knowledge. They seem bent on disregarding the lessons a second hand experience might teach, and determine on living their own lives—and making their own mistakes.

If one must make mistakes it is a bit more comforting, when things go wrong, to know that one has only oneself to blame. After all, circumstances do alter cases, and no two sets of happenings are identical.

Confession is good for the soul. What else is talking over troubles but a confession of doubt, of fear, or of weakness? May this enterprising woman who claims that she could not possibly make a living for her brood by ordinary methods, be a financial success in her role of guide, philosopher, and friend.

Have You a Question?

Mrs. Martin will be glad to answer in this column questions of general interest. Mrs. Martin cannot reply individually to every correspondent. Names will not be published. Address her care of this paper.

Caring for Roses

Bush roses may be pruned once a year. Hybrid Teas, and Hybrid Perpetuals especially, should be pruned at least once a year. If you are growing them for garden decoration, remove half of the previous year's growth. For larger and finer blooms, remove two-thirds of last year's growth. The older growth will be hard and woody, while last year's wood will be tender and more colorful. To prune rambler roses, cut at the base the canes that have flowered, leaving the new wood for future bloom. However, unless they are taking up too much space, climbers need little, if any, pruning.

The insects that trouble roses are not difficult to control if they are not allowed to get a start. Nicotine sprays are the remedy for sucking insects such as aphids. Arsenic sprays will take care of the chewing insects such as worms and beetles.

Beauty Tips Fish Day Becomes An Event, If Cream Recipes Are Used

By JUDITH WILSON

QUESTION: "Can you give me any suggestions for making my hair curly? I would also like to know if there is anything that I can do about my hair. I cut it and now there is a kink on it."

—W.E.C.

THE curliness or straightness of your hair is determined by the shape of a cross-section of your individual hairs and there is nothing that you can do to change this shape—unless you have a permanent wave. If, however, your hair has a slight tendency to curl, you can encourage it by brushing and keeping your scalp in healthy condition. Avoid dryness by giving your hair frequent hot oil shampoos and by rubbing a little pomade into dry ends.

The "hump" that you describe is obviously a scar resulting from the cut on your lip and you shouldn't attempt to do anything about it. If it is sore or bothers you in any way other than vanity, then you should see a doctor.

Be Kind to Animals

More than five hundred anti-cruelty societies over the nation will observe Be Kind to Animals Week this year. The dates are from April 7 to 13, inclusive. The Be Kind to Animals Week is an annual plea by all the humane societies for a more kindly consideration of animals, a reminder that their well-being is the concern of millions of animal lovers.

Crabmeat in Fish Shells

This makes a good fish course for an elaborate dinner or a centerpiece for lunch or supper. Place three cups of crabmeat into small pieces or mix one cup lobster with two of crab. Make one and one-half cups white sauce, add the fish and one-half cup of sliced, sautéed mushrooms. Grate the large scallop shells that are used for cooking, fill with the meat, sprinkle with crumbs or breadcrumbs and bake in a moderate oven until the crumbs are brown. Garnish with shelled hard-cooked eggs and small sprigs of parsley.

Rolls and Fillets

Grease custard cups. Cut thin fish fillets into strips, roll, fasten with a toothpick and place in the custard cups. Sprinkle each one with salt and pepper. Place a lump of butter on top and half fill the cup with rich milk. Bake in a hot oven for twelve to fifteen minutes. Serve on a hot platter with a well-seasoned tomato sauce and garnish with stuffed hard-cooked eggs and bunches of watercress.

Biscuit Oysters

Make a smooth cream sauce of four tablespoons butter, four tablespoons flour, one egg, milk

MODES AND MANNERS

QUESTION: "With spring weather here, the boss is on the verge of starting that old custom of his—coming into the office on Saturdays in knickerbockers. There's been some discussion among the girls here whether such attire is correct for office wear even if it is Saturday. Can you help us decide? Not that your answer will do the boss any good, but for our own information.—Adele L."

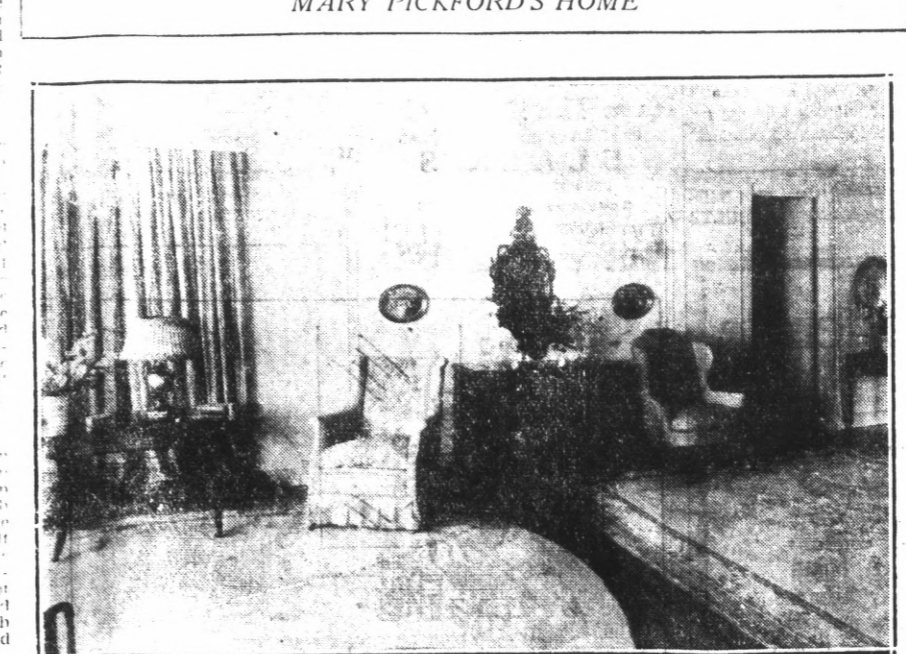

ANSWER: The well-dressed man wears golf togs and other country clothes in the country only. To wear them to the office would be altogether out of the question. He dresses appropriately according to time and place.

QUESTION: "Nothing annoys me so much as having someone cut in when I'm enjoying a dance. Is it really impolite to take her away from you? It strikes me that he is more offensive. What do you say?—Ben S."

ANSWER: Polite society accepts the fashion of cutting-in. This means that you must submit to the practice, too, if you wish to appear polite. It is really up to the girl in a way. If she accepts the new partner at once, that settles it for you. Of course, if she is loath to change partners, she may say, "The next time we pass."

and one-half cup cream. Add salt and pepper to season, one-half cup sliced mushrooms and one-fourth cup minced pimiento and blend all together. Heat one pint oysters in their own liquor until their edges curl, drain and add one-half cup of the cream sauce and stir until smooth. Lastly add the oysters and serve at once on rich, hot baking powder biscuits. This is grand for a Sunday night supper. Serve with crisp stuffed celery and pickles.

ICC GRANTS 5 PERCENT RATE RAISE

to the railways' annual bill.

They claimed that the NRA already had increased their charges about $293,000,000 yearly. This, with the pay restoration and possibly the pension, would make their deficits larger than ever, officials said, despite the freight increases.

LOST MILLIONS

They pointed out that the carriers during the first two months of the year, lost $400,000,000. A number have gone into bankruptcy while the financial position of many others is precarious, despite frequent huge loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The carriers thus regarded today's freight rate increases as helpful, but as being far from the answer to their problem, which is regarded as one of the most serious now facing business and the Roosevelt administration.

CLOSE DECISION

The added emergency charges will go into effect immediately and will be in force until June 30, 1935.

The decision revealed that the railroads came within an inch of receiving no increases at all. The vote was five to four, with all members holding against the granting of the 10 per cent rise, and the minority insisting that the increases would only tend to reduce railway revenues by diverting freight to competing carriers.

Striking Seamen Are Jailed Here

Joseph Mella, 35, a striking seaman residing in Oakland, was sentenced to serve 60 days in the county jail on an intoxication charge when he appeared before Police Judge C. A. Odell yesterday.

Mella and a companion, Manuel DeCotto, 27, also a seaman, were arrested by local officers yesterday at San Pablo and Macdonald avenue. Mella was driving a car and said he was going home after a shift of picketing at the local Standard Oil company wharf. DeCotto was given the alternative of paying a $10 fine or spending 10 days in jail.

Increase In Pay For Rail Workers

SAN FRANCISCO, March 30.—(UP)—The last of the 10 per cent pay cut to railroad employees in 1931 was wiped out by a 5 per cent restoration today, an increase of $5,000,000 a year to employees in California, Oregon, Nevada, Utah, and Arizona.

Last June, the cut was reduced to 7 1/2 per cent and later to 5 per cent, which was wiped out today.

State Solons Face Court Test On Act Of Stopping Clock

SALT LAKE CITY, March 30.—(UP)—A vast amount of legislation enacted in many states this year might become null and void should a movement underway here prove successful and spread to other states.

The threat to thousands of laws involves a challenge of the time-honored legislative trick of stopping clocks when it becomes apparent that business cannot be completed in the time allotted for legislative sessions.

STOPPED CLOCK

In Utah this year the legislature actually was in session 64 days. The constitution limits the session to sixty days. That difficulty was overcome by stopping clocks in the House of Representatives and Senate and recording all business transacted after the 60th day as having been done on the 60th day.

No one thought much about it. Legislatures had so acted since territorial days.

Then, in a surprise move Knox Patterson, former State Senator, demanded the House and Senate journals be corrected to show a state liquor store bill was passed the 64th and not the 60th day. Such corrections would kill the bill, even though it now is a law, the governor having signed it.

GO TO COURT

Furthermore, Patterson told state

NELSON AIDE SAYS AGENTS STRUCK HIM

SAN FRANCISCO, March 30.—UP—Department of Justice agents who "cleaned up" alleged accomplices of George "Baby Face" Nelson, slain desperado, today were accused of a second time of brutality and coercion in obtaining confessions from suspects who allegedly harbored the fugitive gunman.

The new charges developed during cross-questioning of Federal Agent William Ramsey, government witness at the trial of nine persons charged with providing refuge for the fugitive, during the trial.

BRUTALITY CHARGED

Defense Counsel John Taaffe examined the operative.

"Isn't it true that when you had Moreno in the Department of Justice offices here Federal Agent Vernon E. Criss struck his fist 37 times into Moreno's stomach because Moreno said he was innocent?" Taaffe asked the agent.

He referred to Anthony Moreno, a defendant.

"No," Ramsey replied.

ADMITTED GUILT

Ramsey previously had testified that Moreno admitted he was guilty and did not plan to spend much money defending himself at the Federal court trial because he had perfected a new process of making cheap whiskey and wanted to save the money to go into the liquor business later.

The government agent also said Moreno had told of urging Nelson to equip himself with a trailer and camp supplies and hide out in Northern California instead of San Francisco. Federal agents were combing the Midwest and West for Nelson at the time, seeking him for the murder of Federal Agent W. Carter Baum at Little Bohemia, Wis., where the John Dillinger gangsters shot their way out of a government trap.

ARGUMENT DEVELOPS

Considerable argument developed over admission of Moreno's statement into evidence and a similar fight developed over introduction of a statement allegedly given the agents by Eugene Mazet, another defendant.

E. P. Guinane, chief of the Department of Justice here, was called to the stand as the government sought for entry of Mazet's alleged confession.

"We knew Mazet was lying to us. We put it up to him, to line up with the gangsters or with the government," he said. "He lined up with the government."

U. S. District Attorney H. H. McPike, head of the government's legal forces, revealed today that operators obtained their first picture of Nelson from a trunk Mazet had stored in his father's home at San Rafael.

PICTURES FOUND

"Copies of the photographs were immediately sent to every Federal agent and police department in the country," McPike said. "We literally plastered the nation with likenesses of the gangster and the pictures proved valuable in running down Nelson near Chicago."

Mazet, a service station operator, said he had received the trunk from John Paul Chase, Nelson's accomplice sentenced to life imprisonment in Chicago a few days ago for participation in the Barrington, Ill., battle in which Nelson was killed and two Department of Justice men fatally injured.

Lamson Will Testify For Defense At Trial Monday

shake Mrs. Simmonds' story.

E. O. Heinrich, juggernaut of the defense, lashed at theories of prosecution scientific experts, particularly those of Dr. Frederick Prosser, who claimed to have found blood on the pipe with which Lamson allegedly fractured Allen's skull.

Heinrich, renowned Berkeley criminologist, testified there were no traces of blood on the pipe found in a bonfire Lamson had kindled in his backyard on the morning Mrs. Lamson was found dead in her bathtub.

NOT PROBABLE

State theories that the pipe was the murder weapon, he said, were "highly improbable." His findings bolstered the defense premise that Mrs. Lamson died from an accidental fall in the tub. A dramatic reconstruction of the defense's accidental version will be enacted in the courtroom later by Heinrich, employing dummies and photographs.

Action of Superior Judge Robert R. Syer in barring portions of Heinrich's testimony at Lamson's first trial, at which he was convicted and sentenced to hang, helped the defense win a State Supreme Court order for retrial, after Lamson had spent nearly a year in the San Quentin "death row."

The trial will enter its seventh week Monday. Final arguments are expected to begin in about two weeks.

Clipper Ship On Los Angeles Visit

SAN DIEGO, March 30.—(UP)—The Pan-American Clipper returned to San Diego late today after paying a courtesy call to Los Angeles.

The huge flying boat settled down into the bay at 4:01 p. m., just 49 minutes after leaving Los Angeles harbor.

MEDIATORS' PEACE MOVE HANGS FIRE

also manned by non-unionists.

GUARDS READY

As the Buck followed with its capacity load into the stream, 100 pickets outside the plant's gates stirred restlessly. Inside the high fence, however, was a barricade and stern-faced guards ready to repel an attack.

Representatives of the unions believed the tankers would not dare to put in at a major port, where strong picket lines are being maintained.

STATEMENT MADE

From the oil companies came the announcement:

"This company's promise of the tanker operators to put the tanker fleet back in operation to protect the public and industry on this coast. From now on there will be a steady movement."

Had shortages in the Pacific northwest have been threatened by the long stoppage of the tanker fleet.

BOARD SPEEDS ACTION

It will take three and a half days for the Buck to reach Portland and five days to reach Seattle, if it is headed for either port. The La Ventura will take about two days to reach San Francisco.

As the companies precipitated the new crisis, the Federal board just appointed by Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, speeded its peace-making.

So far, the board has indicated it was meeting with success in breaking out the trouble, but today's moves were believed to have created an entirely new situation.

ANOTHER MEETING

Another meeting between the board and the laborites is scheduled for Monday and one with the operators Tuesday. So far, the board has not attempted to bring both groups together at the same time.

The only issue at which there has been no meeting of minds has been that of preferential employment for members of the unions. Both sides have been adamant in refusing to concede the point.

Three hundred ship sailors and painters in San Pedro threatened to join the strike Monday unless wage increase demands were met.

MORE STRIKES

While peace conferences from the last strike at the big California and Hawaiian Sugar Refineries at Crockett still are being held, 40 members of the International Longshoremen's association walked out in protest at discharge of a winch driver and returned only when he was reinstated.

In Marin county, across the bay from San Francisco and the city's principal milk source, union milk drivers were threatened to become involved in a milkers' strike for a wage increase.

To Move Business Office Telephone Co.

The business office of the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co. will be moved tomorrow from 315 Sixth street to larger quarters at 343 Tenth street, between Macdonald and Nevin avenues.

This announcement was made yesterday by Manager L. T. Marshall, who said that all business matters will be transacted by the telephone company at the new location, beginning Monday.

"The new quarters have been equipped to include the most recent improvements in business office arrangement," said Marshall, "and we are confident that the innovations will meet with widespread approval."

Lamson Witness Fined For Speed

SALINAS, March 30.—Sarah Kelly Simonds, Lamson case witness, appeared before Justice of the Peace Harry J. King today to pay a $5 fine imposed on a speeding tag received by her husband, Neil Simonds.

Cited by California Highway Patrolmen for traveling approximately 55 miles an hour on the highway south of this city, Simonds is said to have introduced the arresting officer to his wife, but her identity was not known when she appeared before the court.
